The great historian Plutarch relates an interesting anecdote on the subject of this herb. Timoleon was leading an army against the Carthaginians. "But as he was ascending a hill from the top of which the enemy's camp and all their vast forces would be in sight, he met some mules laden with parsley, and his men took it into their heads that it was a bad omen because we usually crown the sepulcher with parsley, and thence comes the proverb with regard to one that is dangerously ill, 'Such a one has need of nothing but parsley.' To deliver them from this superstition and to remove the panic Timoleon ordered the troops to halt, and making a speech suitable to the occasion, observed among other things that crowns were brought them before The regular convocation of Florida R. The general then crowned himself and all his officers with parsley wreaths, and led his men to battle, their fears conquered, the result being a decisive victory. - Chicago Times-Herald

Measuring Medicines.

A teaspoonful is just one dram; a dessertspoonful, two drams; a tablespoonful, four drams.

In mixing or administering drugs of any sort quantities should be carefully measured in a medicine glass, for then one may be quite sure of the amount given, which is quite impossible to be if one uses spoons, for these vary in size according to fashion.

When measuring medicine, it is best to stand the glass on the table, for if one holds it in the hand one may easily hold it crookedly, and thus inagvertently pour out a larger or smaller amount than is prescribed by the doctor. In some cases errors of this kind might be mischievous in effect.

One of Webster's Brinks. "Daniel Webster," said a Boston man, "as all the world knows, had a penchant for looking on wine when it glowed rosy red. At one time he was driving to Cambridge from Boston Re was billed to make a speech at the home of Harvard, and his companion in the old fashioned gig was a member of the reception committee and a resident of the town.

"On the way to Cambridge Mr. Webster turned to his fellow traveler with an inquiry whether there was tot someplace in the neighborhood where they could obtain a drink. 'If you will drive a short distance out of your way to my house,' was the courteous response, 'i think I can promise you as good a drink of Jamaica rum as you ever

"To the house the twain accordingly journeyed, and once there the host. true to his promise, set before the statesman a decanter of extremely fine rum. The great Massachusetts senator poured out a brimming beater and quaifed it off without wincing. His host tentatively pushed toward him the water jug. but Senator Webster after eying it a moment said: Thank you, no. I wanted a drink, but I am not thirsty.' He then went on to Cambridge and delivered one of his masterly efforts."

The Trunk Paid.

Some years ago a man ran us a bill of $200 in the Tremont House, Chicago, and then ran away without lettling it. The trunk which remained in his room was unusually heavy and opened after his departure was found to contain specimens of ore, brought from the gold and silver wines of Colorado, where presumably he had lost all his money. After waiting out the legal time Mr. Cage sent the contents of the trunk to an assayer, who returned twe bits of metal valued at more than $100 in excess of the bill after deducting his own fees.

Acorns as Charming Ornamints. Take a large acorn, suspend & by a thread so as to nearly touch the water in any glass vessel, set it upon your mantelshelf, bracket or table, and let it stand there for about two months without in any way interfering with it excepting to supply fresh water.

The acorn will burst, throw a root down into the water and a stem upward, sending out from the steni beautiful green leaves.-Home Notes.

Life Saving Pigs.

The Australian coasting steamer Kameruka, while going from Eden to Sydney, traveling at full speed, strick on a reef at Moruya head. There being no rockets on the ship, the captain tied a life line to some pigs which formed part of the cargo and had the animals put overboard. The pigs swam to the shore, taking the line with them, and by establishing communication every soul on board was rescued.

Greasing the Wheels.

A Russian paper gives an interesting insight into the way they do things on the Siberian railway.

A merchant recently sent a carload of frei from Irkatsk to Chita. The railway charges were 170 rubbes, but the tips to raiway officials amounted to 129 rubles more.

Tipping, or "greasing," as it is called in Siberia, is a tax from which no patron of the rallway is exceent. In the case mentioned the first station master told the merchant that the loaded or was "sick," or disabled, ive to be side tracked for repairs

"Hr as will it take to make the repa be merchant asked. "0" ak at least," was the an-

The merchant started, for a week's delay meant the spoiling of his carce. and, besides, it was ordered for immeand, besides, it was ordered for immediate delivery. But when the fruit dealer had slipped 10 or 15 rubles into the official's hand the latter found that the car was well enough to travel.

At the next station the ear fell ill again and had to be restored to health in the same manner, and this process was repeated every time the train

Local merchants have become used to this "greasing" business and simply add the amount to the price of their wares, so that the consumer pays the freight and the tips as well.
